

Enough About Me, What Do You Get?

By Melissa Jagst, with Karen Larré

Over the past few articles, I've shared some about my difficult life and why I believe my experiences opened me up to my ability to communicate with loved ones on the 'other' side. People are often afraid of what communicating with their loved one will be like, and because of this, I feel that hearing from some of my clients will put people at ease better than anything I could say:

When I first met Melissa, I thought she was one of the kindest young women I had met in a while. I was not sold on the idea of being able to speak to relatives that have passed on, but a friend of mine talked me into going to one of Melissa's Saturday evening group sessions.

One woman in the group practically had a family reunion; she was talking to so many generations passed. Then Melissa moved on to others in the room and spoke to old friends and relatives of theirs. When she came to me, I said a name. She told me it was my mother, and that both my mother and father were there. They apologized for things that happened in my life and said some things that not even my husband knew about.

Melissa was on target and spoke like she had grown up with me. She spoke with my Grandmother and my Aunt who was like another mother figure to me. We spoke of things that even I had forgotten about. It was a very healing experience. That night I went to bed, thinking about what went on with Melissa and felt very comforted. I slept like a baby. I would like my brother and sisters to meet Melissa. I think they could overcome some of the grief they are feeling about my parents' deaths.

When I was 3 years old my father died in an auto accident. All my life I have wondered if he was with me or if he would be proud of the person I have become. I heard about Melissa through a friend and was very curious but skeptical of her gift. I went to see her in a group session and Melissa immediately brought him through, along with validation that it was definitely him. At 32 years old, I thought he had missed my graduation, wedding, birth of my child and every other important event. To know now, that he was with me all along and is with me daily, is extremely healing. Thank you Melissa, for what you've done for me and for what I've seen you do for many others.

*I've seen a few psychics in past years. Medium Melissa was the one who was most on target and genuine in her reading. She was patient in answering questions about the process. She is amazing!

Oftentimes because of fear, people wait many months before they call me for a reading, or attend one of my groups. So many clients experience a deep sense of peace after they finally take the step to visit with me ...they often say they wish they had come sooner. Start your amazing healing process with a loved one on the 'other' side today!
